With Dad, I have fond memories of our weekend visits to NOTL to see Grammy , visit Fort George and round up with Ice cream at the Stagecoach. Dad and I did a few cultural things too. (I was a bit of "Nerd") My first visit to an Art Gallery was Albright - Knox in Buffalo (I think I was about 9). I'm pretty sure Dad was bored, but I wanted to go "through it all " so he persevered through. (I still love art galleries and museums) He enjoyed the Buffalo Museum of Science much better as I remember. We spent many Sundays playing arcade games (trying to beat high score on the pinball machine without "tilting" it) and eating wings at Cats Caboose or the Anchor Bar (when in Buffalo); this was usually after mini putt or whatever the days agenda entailed. On the event that it was a special day, then sometimes a dinner would be at Casa del Toro for steak and a "Shirley Temple". Dad bought me my first pair of Jeans and wedge shoes (I was so happy to be less of the "nerd" and to be able to run in the playground without worrying about a dress). I am not sure about later years ,but when I was younger ,Dad loved Star Trek , some Sundays we were together we would hang out with a bucket of Pop Corn watching the Sci-fi series. At some point, we visited the NOTL airport - our famous Canadian actor "William Shatner " made a Guest appearance so we went to see him .Quite from afar , as I recall ,there were a lot of people. In later years ,when I met my late husband Peter (also a Star Trek fan) , we too would enjoy many hours being watching the old and new series. Thanks for many firsts , Dad . Peaceful travels. Kirk out. Love Kellyxoxox

Marsha, Jennifer, Jordan & Erin, My heart goes out to all of you. Smile as you remember all the good times together in health and sickness. Jennifer and Jordan when I spoke to Dad, he would always tell me what you two were doing with school, sports and work endeavours : he was always so proud of the two of you. I am so grateful to you all for calling me, so that I could say good-bye. Thank-you Jordan and Erin for taking the time to drive Dad to meet me when I was in Florida this past March. Lunch was lovely at Tarpon lake with you all. It was nice to meet Erin and share a couple laughs with Dad. I am adding a few pics of Dad in his "younger" days to share and some fond memories of Dad when I was younger. Take care of each other. Kelly Tompkins (Torch) daughter
